

As a leading motorist organization, AAA offers products and services designed to serve members throughout a lifetime of motor vehicle ownership and use. AAA Automotive is committed to enhancing every aspect of vehicle ownership and providing members with reliable solutions to their automotive needs. One of the most well-known and utilized AAA services is roadside assistance. Another popular service is AAA Approved Auto Repair.

AAA Roadside Assistance

AAA/CAA is the largest roadside assistance provider in North America, responding to millions of calls every year. As one of AAA's most widely recognized products, AAA roadside assistance is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year by calling 800-AAA-HELP, visiting AAA.com, or AAA's mobile app. The service provides roadside assistance to members whether riding or driving (as opposed to covering a specific vehicle) and, includes flat tire assistance, minor mechanical adjustments, testing, boosting, or replacement of vehicle battery, towing, extrication, and lockout/locksmith assistance. AAA provides roadside assistance using a network of AAA club-owned fleets and independent service providers. AAA comes to the rescue regardless of distance to the scene of disablement and includes towing back to the responding station without fees. AAA's trained technicians make every attempt to get members back on the road. When towing is needed, AAA can assist with referrals to Approved Auto Repair locations.

AAA Battery Service

Since 1997, the mobile AAA Battery Service has been meeting the needs of today's busy individuals by providing battery testing, and if necessary, battery replacement at home, work, or other convenient location of the member's choice. The service is available in all AAA and CAA club territories, and includes vehicle charging system diagnostics to ensure that the member's vehicle is operating normally. With its one-for-one recycling practice, this fast, convenient service also is "green," resulting in more than 7 million used batteries being returned to battery recycling centers. A three-year free replacement warranty and exclusive AAA member pricing have made this service a popular roadside solution.

Emergency Payment Acceptance

AAA's roadside assistance service providers will accept a member's personal check or credit card, up to $250, for payment of emergency services.

AAA Road Service Online® and Mobile Access

AAA provides an array of convenient ways to request roadside assistance and other services. From a personal computer, requests for roadside assistance can be submitted via AAA Road Service Online, which also is available on AAA's Mobile Web site and AAA app. To automate and expedite roadside assistance, users log onto AAA.com or the mobile AAA app to request assistance.
