Michael Calkins

Michael Calkins is national manager of the AAA Approved Auto Repair program which independently inspects and approves quality repair facilities as a service to AAA members and the general public. In this position, he works with more than 45 AAA and CAA clubs in the U.S. and Canada to administer a network of nearly 8,000 car dealer service departments and independent repair facilities. Michael oversaw the AAA Approved Auto Repair program at the AAA-affiliated Inland Automobile Association in Washington State for seven years before joining the AAA National Office in Heathrow, Fla.

Calkins has more than 35 years of experience in the automotive industry. Starting as a technician in 1975, he is the author of automotive vocational textbooks, has published numerous articles on auto service and technology, and is frequently interviewed by media on automotive service and technology topics. Calkins has an Associate of Applied Science (AAS) degree in auto mechanics, and a BA with a double major in English and religion. He holds current ASE certification as a Master Automobile Technician with additional certification in L1 - Advanced Emission Controls.
